

THE MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL.

BY MCCLANAHAN & DILL.

ATLANTA, GA., MONDAY EVENING, JANUARY 18, 1864.

VOL. XIV. NO. 290

The Memphis Appeal.

Daily Appeal.

PUBLISHED

BY

John R. McLanahan...Benjamin F. Dill.

Under the firm style of

MCCLANAHAN & DILL,

To whom all letters are addressed, or otherwise, should be addressed.

Terms of Subscription.

Daily per month.....$4.00

Two dollars extra taken for a longer term.

Postage, 10c.

Terms of Advertising.

All advertisements will be charged two dollars and one-half per square for the first insertion—and two dollars and one-half per square for each subsequent insertion.

Small notices will be charged at the rate of twenty-five cents per line, and all other articles not of general interest, five dollars per line.

Offices of Advertising.

On White Street, between Peachtree and Broad Streets, and Two Adams, and West Peachtree.

APPRENTICE OFFICES.

We have the satisfaction of announcing to our friends that we recently purchased and have made connection with the Atlanta publication office, one of the most

RECENTLY.....$4.00

JOB PRINTING OFFICES.

For the Confederacy,

and are consequently prepared to fill orders for

JOB WORK

OF EVERY DESCRIPTION.

Our facilities for executing Above work are superior, and we invite the attention of Quartermasters, Commissioners, and other government officials there.

We have, also, a large amount of English paper on hand, suitable for the first work.

Orders will be promptly filled by experienced workers.

McCLANAHAN & DILL,

106, ALBAN. St., or Montgomery, Ala.

TO PRINTERS.

WE WISH TO PURCHASE A GOOD

JOB PRINTING PRESS,

NOT SMALLER THAN LETTER PAGE,

Either Single, Double, or Triple,

Or any other good print.

APPEAL OFFICE,

Atlanta, Ga., or

JOB OFFICE,

Montgomery, Ala.

NEW FIRM!

C. POWELL & CO., H. E. MILL.

POWELL & HILL,

JUGTIONERS,

Commission Merchants and Real Estate

Agents,

(Late M. W. Hockings & Co., Whitehead street.)

ESPECIALLY well informed. All business is transacted in their own name with private individuals.

THOS. H. KURT & CO.,

COMMISSION MERCHANTS,

Jackson Street, Near Green street,

Bogart, Ga.

NEW DRUG FIRM!

The Southern Literary Messenger for 1864

This long established and well known journal of literature, having been recently purchased by the subscribers, will in future be conducted exclusively under their control. In all departments, both business and editorial, the new proprietors will be anxious to give every new organ, and the proprietors are sanguine of success in the future, which the magazine has never yet realized. If their funds and the public shall yield them a support worthy of an important enterprise, looking to the future, the prospects of the Globe are bright.

Argued in behalf of the importance of an elevated literature to our country, the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of opinion, in short, every writer whose pretensions are sufficient to entitle it to notice, will have its due share of attention.

We earnestly entreat the managers of our newspapers to do their best to encourage and assist us in this important cause.

Mr. Atkinson, of New Orleans, has written a pamphlet entitled "Literature to our Country," the absence of which has hitherto made it difficult to get up a good organ among other nations, who were not so anxious to meet our interests, and may be addressed to those who have this circular to designate to reach.

But to the attainment of this end, something more is necessary than mere verbal expression of sympathy and enthusiasm.

The friends of Southern literature, the editors of the Globe, and the proprietors are anxious to contribute to the instruction and amusement of the public at large. To this end, we will give an audience to and a full consideration of the various organs of